

We, the members of the Libertarian Party, challenge the cult of the omnipotent state and defend the rights of the individual.

We hold that all individuals have the right to exercise sole dominion over their own lives, and have the right to live in whatever manner they choose, so long as they do not forcibly interfere with the lives of others.

Governments throughout the world have attempted to regulate the production of labor. Even with the best intentions, such attempts have failed to improve the lives of labor without the consent of those whose labor is being regulated.

We, on the contrary, demand that government should protect the individual: (1) the right to life; (2) the right to liberty; and (3) the right to property—accordingly we oppose all attempts by government to abridge the freedom of speech and press, as well as government censorship in any form; and (3) the right to property—accordingly we oppose all government interference with private property, such as confiscation, nationalization, and eminent domain, and support the prohibition of robbery, trespass, fraud, and misrepresentation.

LIBERTARIAN PARTY RADICAL CAUCUS

Since governments, when instituted, are to protect the rights of individuals, they should not be forced to sacrifice their lives and property for the benefit of others. They should be left free by government to deal with one another as free traders; and the resultant economic system, the only one compatible with the protection of individual rights, is the free market.
